

HERE'S A HAPPY GIRL.

Daisy Bedwell's Crooked Face
Has Been Made Straight.

A Marvel of Dental Surgery in Roosevelt Hospital.

Doctors in Mississippi and New York
Thought It a Hopeless Case.

A remarkable surgical and dental operation has just been finished, with gratifying success alike to patient and surgeons, at Roosevelt Hospital. "The Evening World," with some difficulty, has obtained exclusively the details of the operation.

BEFORE THE OPERATION.

The brave girl who underwent the torturing operation is Miss Daisy Bedwell, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Bedwell, of Yazoo City, Miss. This afternoon in company with her mother, who has been her constant companion and untiring nurse, she left for home. No happier mortal was away from New York City today than did Mrs. Bedwell and her daughter. A new and brighter life opens up before the young woman who came to New York last August weighted with and affliction that threatened to embitter her entire existence. Thanks to the great advancement in surgery and dentistry and to the skill of the operating surgeons at Roosevelt Hospital the clouds of her younger life are cleared away.

The operation was performed by Dr. Frank Hartley, of 46 East Thirty-fourth street, consulting surgeon at Roosevelt Hospital, and George Howe Winkler, M. D., D. D. S., Professor of Operative Dentistry at the New York Dental School.

In describing the operation Dr. Winkler said:

"Miss Daisy was presented to me to decide if, by a combined surgical and dental operation, a deformity of her face could be corrected. I found upon inquiry that when the young lady was four and a half years old she lost almost the entire lower jaw on the right side by necrosis, due to some unknown cause, probably a blow or a fall which fractured the bone, the bone coming away almost entirely by the sloughing away of the tissue in the neck under the angle of the jaw, and very little through surgical interference.

AS SHE LEFT FOR HOME.

"The periorbital was thus left intact, and I found upon examination that it had healed with a new growth of bone, which, however, did not grow any longer than a four-and-a-half-year-old child's jaw should be. The development of the jaw on the other side of her face being normal, it had pushed her chin around so much that it was under her right cheek, instead of the center of her face.

"I determined that if the new growth of bone was saved, it would be possible to force the chin around to the front of the face and hold it there permanently. I advised the operation, and on Aug. 31 it was performed by Dr. Frank Hartley, at Roosevelt Hospital. He made an incision in the neck under the angle of the jaw, sawing the bone squarely in two.

"On Sept. 2 I inserted two hard rubber appliances, one on each jaw, the lower jaw containing only nine teeth, two being on the defective side and located them to their respective teeth. On each appliance was a clasp so arranged that when I wrapped those silk around them I was enabled to pull the jaw fully three-eighths of an inch beyond where it desired to carry it, bringing the chin to a perfect position. I allowed these appliances to hold the jaws about two weeks, while the external wound was rapidly healing and the space between the bones was filling up with interstitial tissue.

"I then removed them to make some slight alterations, which were needed, and, replacing them, kept them on for nearly two weeks longer. The wound was sufficiently healed by that time for me to begin the work of inserting the permanent appliances. I separated and shaped up the crowns of the three last molars on both jaws and crown them with gold, which crowns were soldered together and were capable of being sprung into their places.

"Upon the lower jaw I had soldered an upright bolt, which slid up and down and held the jaw to the upper, allowing the jaws perfect freedom to move. The operation was performed by Dr. Frank Hartley, of 46 East Thirty-fourth street, consulting surgeon at Roosevelt Hospital, and George Howe Winkler, M. D., D. D. S., Professor of Operative Dentistry at the New York Dental School.

In describing the operation Dr. Winkler said:

"Miss Daisy was presented to me to decide if, by a combined surgical and dental operation, a deformity of her face could be corrected. I found upon inquiry that when the young lady was four and a half years old she lost almost the entire lower jaw on the right side by necrosis, due to some unknown cause, probably a blow or a fall which open and close, but retaining the lower jaw perfect in the new position to which I had brought it. On the right side of the lower jaw, where all except two teeth had been lost by the trouble in early childhood, I placed a small plate, which carried some of the teeth in front at the right corner and extending back afforded a grinding surface for the grinding teeth on the upper jaw. This makes a perfect shape on the right corner of the mouth, and will also harden and strengthen the interstitial tissue between the ends of the bone.

"I must add that Miss Bedwell proved herself an extremely courageous little patient, and returned to her home a very pretty and happy girl."

Before Mrs. Bedwell determined to come to New York she had visited numerous surgeons in the South who advised against the operation, and even in New York a number of surgeons of eminence declared that the operation could not be successfully performed. It surely appears to have been, however, and a glance at the portraits will demonstrate that fact. It is another triumph for Roosevelt Hospital.

MRS. W. A. CLARK DEAD.
Wife of the Millionaire Died While He Was Hurrying Home.

The arrangements for the funeral of Mrs. Clark, wife of W. A. Clark, the multi-millionaire and copper king of Butte City, Mont., have not as yet been made.

Mrs. Clark will not arrive in the city until this afternoon. The sad news of his wife's death was given him while en route from the West to join her.

Mrs. Clark was taken ill only a few days ago and died yesterday at her home in London, where she had been for some time.

William Clark, Mr. Clark's son, who is a student at Yale University, a few hours before his mother's death and is now at home prostrated.

About two years ago Mrs. Clark's daughter married Dr. Culver, and they are living on Fifth avenue. Dr. Culver attended Mrs. Clark during her illness, and now has taken charge of all the arrangements pending Mr. Clark's arrival.

STOLE CHINESE SAUSAGE.
Young Men Took It from the Roof Where It Lay Seasoning.

James Chancer, alias Lee, eighteen years old, of 86 Catharine street, and George Hauff, alias Joe Staker, seventeen years old, of 5 Lewis street, were arraigned in the Tombs Police Court today. They are charged with stealing 500 pounds of Chinese sausage, valued at $125, from the roof of the house, 11 Mott street, where the meat had been laid out to season. The owner was Wan Hook, who runs the Chinese Delicatessen.

Last Monday night Chancer and Hauff called on a girl living on the top floor of the house, and on leaving sneaked through the scuttle to the roof and stole the sausage. Part of the stuff was sold and they threw away the remainder. They admitted their guilt and Justice Martin held them for trial.

LABORER SUSPECTED OF ARSON.
A Blaze in the Annexed District Led to His Arrest.

Timothy Sullivan, a laborer, thirty-one, is locked up in the Morrisania police station on suspicion of arson.

Shortly before 7 o'clock yesterday evening a fire occurred in the cellar of the four-story tenement 403 East One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street, owned by Anthony Sheppard, of Third avenue and One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street, and 300 damage was done.

Sullivan is suspected of starting the fire.

McLaughlin Doesn't Know Jimmie.

A dispatch from Brooklyn, N. J., printed this morning, tells how plucky fourteen-year-old Lucy Harvey captured "Jimmie" Cleving, a notorious New York thief, while he and a pal were breaking into her father's home yesterday.

McLaughlin says he does not recognize in this man any thief whom he wants. The inspector will try and ascertain who the man under arrest is.

Miss Gardner's Diamond Ring.

Miss Jean Gardner, a pretty woman of twenty-three, who lives at 308 West Twenty-second street, today caused the arrest of Henry Kaufman, a salesman, of 46 West Forty-seventh street, on the charge of grand larceny. She said that some time ago she insured a diamond ring, worth $100, to Kaufman for the purpose of having it duplicated. He failed to return it. Kaufman was held for trial.

To Help Buy Leacha Foot.

"The Evening World" has received 50 cents from E. W. Paine, of Eastport, L. I., for Harvey Leach. He is the young man whose case was described in this paper last Tuesday, and to whom the money to buy an artificial foot stands for the opportunity to earn a livelihood.

The savings on furniture by buying of Geo. C. Fleet Co., 14th St. and 9th Ave., is inducing many folks to housekeeping.
